

EXHIBITION

– nothing is too much trouble

There is little room for error when planning to attend an exhibition. Just one missing exhibition panel or insufficient promotional literature can jeopardise months of planning, not to mention your company's investment and reputation.

With over two decades of experience, Fishers specialise in transporting your exhibition materials and equipment – ensuring that everything arrives at the right place and at the right time.

TRANSPORT

From start to finish, whether being transported or held in storage, Fishers retain control and responsibility for your goods. No global network; No faceless corporation; No automated call answering. Just a professional approach to personal service that is reflected in Fishers' attention to detail. For example:–

- Fishers can store your materials overnight, enabling early access to exhibition halls – enabling you to avoid the crush and get a head start.
- Fishers can remove and store all packing materials – avoiding unnecessary clutter on your stand and ensuring that your materials can be properly protected again.
- Fishers can provide stand security at the end of the show, enabling you to get away immediately the show's over – avoiding stress and delay.

AND STORAGE

‘Getting our materials to and from exhibitions can be complicated and awkward. Fishers work hard to meet our requirements and always check that things are the way we want them. They are efficient and make things happen.’
